

2009 Chautauqua
Reading and Film Series
Broken Bow, Nebraska

Monday March 16, 7 p.m.

Book discussion: "All the King's Men" by Robert Penn Warren. This fictionalized account of Huey Long tells the story of Willie Clark, a Southern politician whose pursuit of power comes at a high price.

Monday April 20, 7 p.m.

Film: "The Plow that Broke the Plains" (1936) by Pare Lorentz, a documentary sponsored by the U.S. Government Resettlement Administration.

Monday May 18, 7 p.m.

Book discussion: "Mules and Men" by Zora Neale Hurston. A treasury of African American folklore, including stories, songs, customs, and superstitions, collected by Hurston in the South.

Monday June 15, time to be announced

Film: "Grapes of Wrath" (1940) by Darryl F. Zanuck. Based on the novel by John Steinbeck, this film follows the story of the fictional Joad family as they journey from drought-stricken Oklahoma to California.

All of these events will be held at the Broken Bow Public Library, 626 South D Street. For more information, contact K. Joan Birnie at (308) 872-2927 or at bbpl@kdsi.net.